A friend claims that the phrase for free is incorrect. Should we only say at no cost instead?

8 "Free" and "on the house" both mean that you don't have to pay, but the inferred meaning is slightly different. If something is "free"; it is without charge. For example, you might ...

If so, my analysis amounts to a rule in search of actual usage--a prescription rather than a description. In any event, the impressive rise of "free of"; against "free from"; over the past 100 years ...

I want to make a official call and ask the other person whether he is free or not at that particular time. I think asking, "Are you free now?" doesn't sound formal. So, are there any ...
