What is mixed procurement?

Contracting authorities need to be able to award contracts that are not always 100% goods, 100% services or 100% works. Contracts can therefore comprise a mixture of two or more different categories.

What are the mixed contracts rules?

The mixed contracts rules close this loophole whilst providing the necessary flexibility for contracting authorities to mix contracts where appropriate. There are two thresholds relevant in this context: the goods/services threshold, and the works threshold.
